“Everybody’s excited. We’ve been planning this for quite some time. It brings some hope to everything here. It shows we’re here to stay, and we’re going to take care of our patients.” (:16)

“The monitors will be an interactive tool that we can use to show patients 3D anatomy. We can resource information from the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute. It’s as simple as putting in their email, then we can send information to them. A lot of companies don’t print booklets anymore.” (:27)

“The digital board makes the process more comprehensive. It makes it more easily understandable to patients. You can just te// patients. But it’s different when you see where your cancer is, how it’s responding to treatment and what the plan is. Visual stimulation is always the best.” (:17)

“Some people like to be around others and share stories during treatment. But we have the private bays for people who are more confined and want their loved ones to be with them.” (:19)

“When people come here, they know we’re comprehensive. We’re compassionate. We’re professional. We have the facilities that can accommodate care for most diseases,” said Dr. Labayog. “So, not only do the patients feel comfortable, but the family feels confident that their loved ones are taken care of.” (:19)
